

Eva Fogelman

Eva Fogelman was born in a displaced persons camp in Kassel, Germany after World War II, Fogelman earned her Ph.D in 1987 from the Graduate Center of the City University of New York in social/ personality psychology. Her doctoral dissertation was The Rescuers: A Socio-psychological Study of Altruistic Behavior During the Nazi Era. Fogelman is social psychologist, psychotherapist, author of award winning books, and filmmaker. Co-founder of the Jewish Foundation for Christian Rescuers; co-founder and co-director of International Study of Organized Persecution of Children; Dr. Fogelman has organized conferences around the world for Generations of the Holocaust and other historically traumatized groups, such as Native Americans. Co-editor of Children During the Nazi Reign: Psychological Perspective on the Interview Process, Dr. Fogelman is the writer and co-producer of the award-winning documentary Breaking the Silence: The Generation After the Holocaust (PBS). She serves on many boards, including the American Gathering and Federation of Jewish Holocaust Survivors and Their Descendants, Hadassah Women's Study Center at Brandeis University, Counseling Center for Women in Israel, I Volunteer, Training Institute for Mental Health, Child Development Research and Hidden Child Foundation (ADL).