

Gregory H. Stanton

Gregory H. Stanton is Research Professor in Genocide Studies and Prevention at the School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution, George Mason University, Arlington, Virginia, USA.

Dr. Stanton is the founder (1999) and president of Genocide Watch (website: www.genocidewatch.org) the founder (1982) and director of the Cambodian Genocide Project, and is the founder (1999) and Chair of the International Alliance to End Genocide. He was the President (2007 - 2009) of the International Association of Genocide Scholars (IAGS.)

Dr. Stanton served in the State Department (1992-1999), where he drafted the United Nations Security Council resolutions that created the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. In 1994, Stanton won the American Foreign Service Association's prestigious W. Averell Harriman award for "extraordinary contributions to the practice of diplomacy exemplifying intellectual courage," based on his dissent from U.S. policy on the Rwandan genocide.

Since leaving the State Department, Stanton was deeply involved in the U.N. - Cambodian government negotiations that created the Khmer Rouge Tribunal, for which he drafted internal rules of procedure and evidence.

He has degrees from Oberlin College, Harvard Divinity School, Yale Law School, and a Doctorate in Cultural Anthropology from the University of Chicago.
