

Joanna B. Michlic

Joanna Beata Michlic is a social and cultural historian and Director of HBI (Hadassah-Brandeis Institute) Project on Families, Children, and the Holocaust at Brandeis University. She received her Ph.D. in modern European and Jewish history from University of London. Between 2000 and 2003, she was a Lady Davis Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and a Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Yad Vashem Institute in Jerusalem. Until December 2008 she was an Associate Professor of History and Chair of the Holocaust and Ethical Values at Lehigh University, Bethlehem Pennsylvania. Her major publications include Neighbors Respond: The Controversy about Jedwabne (2004; co-edited with Antony Polonsky) and Poland's Threatening Other: The Image of the Jew from 1880 to the Present (hardback 2006, paperback 2008, Polish translation 2012), and the forthcoming Bringing the Dark to Light: The Reception of the Holocaust in Postcommunist Europe, co-edited with John-Paul Himka (Lincoln, NUP). She has written a significant number of articles and reviews for American History Review, East European Jewish Affairs, Holocaust and Genocide Studies, Jewish Social Studies, Polin, Slavonic and East European Review, Yad Vashem Studies and Zagłada. Her research interests include the history and culture of East European Jewry, Polish-Jewish relations in the modern era, Jewish childhood in Europe, the Holocaust and its memory in Europe, and nationalism and minorities in Eastern Europe. She is currently working on two single-authored monographs, The Social History of Jewish Children in Poland: Survival and Identity, 1945–1949, and More than The Milk of Human Kindness: Jewish Survivors and Their Polish Rescuers recount Their Tales, 1945-1949. She is a recipient of many academic awards and fellowships, most recently the Rothschild Foundation (Hanadiv) Europe Visiting Fellowship, Spring 2012 and Visiting Senior Research Fellow, 2011-2014, International History Department, LSE.